

Dr. Dominik Brem is the environmental officer for both campus sites at ETH Zurich and deputy head of the ETH unit for Security, Human Health and Environment. In his function he is responsible for the universities environmental management system - the environmental target setting, environmental accounting and reporting. Dr. Brem obtained his PhD in Biology at ETH Zürich. Afterwards he worked as a project manager for several years for two international consulting companies. Dominik Brem consulted international companies in the chemical, pharmaceutical and semiconductor sectors in questions related to energy and resource efficiency, sustainable management and corporate strategy development. His main expertise is in fields of energy efficient building technologies, sustainable use of resources and green house gas emissions.